THE KING'S PILGRIMAGE

BY
RUDYARD KIPLING

OUR King went forth on pilgrimage
His prayer and vows to pay
To them that saved our Heritage
And cast their own away.
And there was little show of pride,
Or prows of belted steel,
For the clean-swept oceans every side
Lay free to every keel.

And the first land he found, it was shoal and banky ground
Where the broader seas begin,
And a pale tide grieving at the broken harbour mouth
Where they worked the Death Ships in :
And there was neither gull on the wing,
Nor wave that could not tell
Of the bodies that were buckled in the lifebuoy's ring
That slid from swell to swell.

(All that they had they gave—they gave ; and they shall not return,
For these are those that have no grave where any heart may mourn.)

And the next land he found, it was low and hollow ground
Where once the cities stood,
But the man-high thistle had been master of it all,
Or the bulrush by the flood ;
And there was neither blade of grass
Nor lone star in the sky,
But shook to see some spirit pass
And took its agony.

THE SILENT CITIES

And the next land he found, it was bare and hilly ground
Where once the bread-corn grew,
But the fields were cankered and the water was defiled,
And the trees were riven through ;
And there was neither paved highway,
Nor secret path in the wood,
But had borne its weight of the broken clay,
And darkened 'neath the blood.

(Father and Mother they put aside, and the nearer love also—
An hundred thousand men who died, whose grave shall no man know.)

And the last land he found, it was fair and level ground
Above a carven Stone,
And a stark Sword brooding on the bosom of the Cross
Where high and low are one ;
And there was grass and the living trees,
And the flowers of the Spring,
And there lay gentlemen from out of all the seas
That ever called him King.

('Twixt Nieuport sands and the eastward lands where the Four Red
Rivers spring
Five hundred thousand gentlemen of those that served the King.)

All that they had they gave—they gave—
In sure and single faith.
There can no knowledge reach the grave
To make them grudge their death
Save only if they understood
That, after all was done,
We they redeemed denied their blood,
And mocked the gains it won.

PREFACE

BY

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR FABIAN WARE

K.C.V.O., K.B.E., C.B., C.M.G.

I HAVE been asked by the Author and Publishers to write an introduction to their Guide to the British War Cemeteries in France and Belgium. In doing so I feel that it will be of interest to the reader if I explain the extent to which the Imperial War Graves Commission has been associated with its production and say something of the special circumstances in which it has been compiled.

During the War, as Director-General of Graves Registration and Enquiries, I was able, with the help of funds generously and sympathetically provided by the Joint War Committee of the British Red Cross Society and Order of St. John, to furnish the next-of-kin of a soldier who had fallen, with a photograph of his grave. On the card in which this photograph was placed were given certain particulars, including the best available indication as to the situation of the grave and, when it was in a cemetery, directions as to the nearest railway station, which might be useful for those wishing to visit the country after the War. This branch of our work had, however, to be abandoned as an official undertaking soon after the conclusion of hostilities and when the military organization was finally merged into the Imperial War Graves Commission.

To relatives of the dead who, as we have every reason to know, have watched the Commission's work closely and anxiously and have shown a wonderfully patient appreciation of the many complexities and difficulties which it involved, no excuse need, I believe, be offered for having concentrated our energies and our resources on the main objects of our task. We did, nevertheless, at the same time, do everything in our power to encourage and assist private enterprise to fill the gap thus created, and, thanks mainly to the warm-hearted and devoted efforts of one or two well-known voluntary organizations, it has to some extent done so.

But in spite of this, and of the regular publication by the Commission of Cemetery Registers giving particulars of each individual grave and of the names inscribed on the 'Missing Memorials', evidence has been constantly before us that two widespread demands were not satisfied. The first was for a photograph showing the general appearance of each cemetery when its construction was finished: the headstones erected, the Cross of Sacrifice (together with the Stone of Remembrance in the larger of the cemeteries) set up and the buildings and flower-beds completed. The second was for such clear indications of the situation of each cemetery as would enable its geographical surroundings to be to some extent visualized and a visit to it easily planned or undertaken.

It was therefore with very great interest that I learnt some months ago that Mr. S. C. Hurst, who was working for us in France, had been giving up such leisure as he had in order to photograph the cemeteries, memorials, and to make specially designed maps to indicate their situation. He showed me specimens of both, and they appeared to me to be so admirable and to show such sympathetic understanding of what was so persistently required, that I encouraged him to proceed with the venture on which he had spontaneously embarked. Very shortly afterwards he informed me that Messrs. Methuen & Co. Ltd. had agreed to publish his guide-book ; but my friend, Mr. E. V. Lucas, chairman of that firm, who is able to speak with unequalled authority on such a matter, told me that, while he thought highly of the quality of Mr. Hurst's work, if it was to be completed satisfactorily it would require his individual attention for several months. Mr. Hurst was therefore allowed to sever his connexion temporarily with the Commission and to devote himself exclusively to the production of this book. That is the only help, such as it is, which the Commission has given him, unless one takes into account the supplying of information to which any member of the public has the right of access, the checking of his figures and statements and the making of a few suggestions.

While this book cannot therefore be said to be authoritative, it is right to add that it has the sympathetic approval of the Commission, and that, personally, I do not think that the two demands to which I referred above could have been more adequately met within such convenient limits. There is only one addition I should like to make to the information which Mr. Hurst has supplied.

The British War Cemeteries in France and Belgium are so important a feature of the towns, villages and country-side, and are regarded as so important by the peoples of those countries themselves, that permission was willingly accorded by the proper authorities for road-signs to be erected where desirable indicating the direction to be followed by those in search of them. These signposts conform to the general pattern adopted in those countries, but were specially designed by Sir Charles Holmes, the late Director of the National Gallery. This is one more instance of the ready response which the Commission has never failed to receive to its appeal for help and guidance from those who are the leading authorities in their own special spheres throughout the Empire. Not only did Sir Charles design them, but he came to France with me when the first were erected and made, on the spot, such modifications as seemed to him needful to adapt them to their surroundings. They are effective and dignified, and besides fulfilling their purpose will in future remind all travellers on the French and Belgium roads of the sacrifice which the British Empire made in the Great War. The accompanying illustration shows one of these signposts; they are all of the same colours, white lettering and crown on an apple-green background, the support being painted in the same two colours.

As I have said, I believe that this book meets a real demand. If I am right, there will be some—in these present times there may be many—whose husband, son or father lies in one of those silent cities oversea and who would wish to have a copy but cannot afford to buy it. I am often asked how the richer, in this fellowship of sacrifice, can help the poorer. Might I suggest that this is one way? But I hope that it will also get into the hands of many who have no association of kinship with these cemeteries and memorials, but for whom the claims of national brotherhood fall on ears not deaf to the sounds of a past fading into the distance or on hearts not yet unmoved by gratitude for a sacrifice on which their present rests secure. Then perhaps some of them, touring in these foreign lands, may be reminded by this book that a short way to the left or the right off the main road, but far enough off to be rarely visited, lies one of those cemeteries tended reverently and lovingly by a British gardener, a man who himself fought in the War, but who rarely sees one of his own countrymen and to whom a word of encouragement, thanks and wonder at the beauty of his work may give new strength and be long remembered.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

THIS book, by the aid of maps, illustrations, and descriptive notes, endeavours to be a complete guide to all Cemeteries containing war graves and all Memorials recording 'Missing' of the Forces of the British Empire who fell in France and Flanders during the Great War 1914-1918.

The Cemeteries (so aptly termed 'The Silent Cities' by Mr. Rudyard Kipling) and Memorials in France and Belgium north of a line drawn east and west through Paris are, with few exceptions, shown on the enclosed maps. The maps divide the book into geographical sections, and each section contains illustrations and descriptions of those Cemeteries and Memorials, within the limits of the map, that record over forty British Dead. The Cemeteries and Memorials not within the area mapped and generally outside the Battle Zone of the British Armies are described in relation to a large town by brief notes.

The descriptions of Cemeteries, Memorials, and Towns are mostly compiled from the Introductions to the Cemetery and Memorial Registers published by order of the Imperial War Graves Commission, 82 Baker Street, London, W.1. 'Special Memorials' in these abbreviated descriptions indicate memorials to officers and men whose graves have been destroyed by shell-fire and to those known or believed to be buried in the Cemetery.

I acknowledge my gratitude to Major-General Sir Fabian Ware, Vice-Chairman of the Imperial War Graves Commission, for his Preface, and for the facilities granted to me in compiling this book. By his advice and support the whole was made possible.

I am indebted for valuable help to Major H. F. Chettle, Director of Records, London, and to Lieutenant-Colonel F. Higginson, Chief Administrative Officer, France and Belgium.

THE SILENT CITIES

DUNKERQUE is a large fortified town of 39,000 inhabitants, an important and progressive seaport on the north coast, at the confluence of five canals, in the Department of the Pas-de-Calais. The town is of great historic interest and was frequently attacked and besieged from the 8th to the 18th centuries. Ceded to Cromwell by Louis XIV, fortified by the English and returned to France (1662) by Charles II. During the War 1914-1918 Dunkerque was severely bombarded by the Germans from land, sea, and air, notably by a long-range gun 22 miles away on the Belgian coast.

705 DUNKERQUE TOWN CEMETERY (Nord). $1\frac{1}{4}$ miles SE. of sta., S. of Dunkerque Canal and road to Furnes. The town remained in Allied hands throughout the war. Three plots of British graves are near the entrance and 2 are in the NE. corner of the Cem. Records 423 U.K., 7 Aust., 4 Can., 4 N.Z., 2 S.A., 2 Ind., 1 B.W.I., and 5 Egypt burials.

2485 ZUYDCOOTE MILITARY CEMETERY (Nord). 6 miles NE. of Dunkerque, 600 yards E. of Zuydcoote Sta., 400 yards W. of village on farm track. Majority of British burials date from Aug. to Nov. 1917. Records 313 U.K., 6 Can., 3 N.Z., 2 S.A., 1 Aust., 1 Egypt., and 1 Belg. burials.

DUNKERQUE

588 COXYDE MILITARY CEMETERY (W. FLANDERS). $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from coast, 1 mile W. of Coxyde village and sta., on road to La Panne. Used by 4th Army from June to end of 1917. Records 1,452 U.K., 19 N.Z., 18 Aust., 14 Can., 2 S.A., and 1 B.W.I., also 10 German burials.

13 ADINKERKE MILITARY CEMETERY (W. FLANDERS). $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles W. of Furnes, S. of village and Adinkerke-Panne Sta. on road to Bulscamp. The village was 8 miles behind the 4th Army front from June to Nov. 1917. Records 158 U.K., 5 Aust., 2 Can., 2 B.W.I., 1 Egypt., 4 Russ., and 98 German burials.

12 ADINKERKE CHURCHYARD EXTENSION (W. FLANDERS). $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles W. of Furnes, 200 yards from Adinkerke-Panne Sta., near church and road to La Panne. In June 1917 the 4th Army took over the sector before Adinkerke from St. Georges to the sea, and held it until Nov. 1917. British plot in Belgian Mil. Cem. and records 69 U.K. and 8 B.W.I. burials.

NIEUPOORT—OSTENDE

NIEUPOORT MEMORIAL (W. FLANDERS).
 $\frac{1}{2}$ mile NE. of Nieuport Station, where the Ostende road crosses the R. Yser, within the British lines held by 32nd Division after July 10th 1917. Records 566 U.K. 'Missing' who fell in the operations of 1914 and 1917.

NIEUPOORT is a small town in the Province of West Flanders, on the south-west side of the River Yser, two miles from the sea.

To relieve Antwerp the 87th French Territorial Division, the Brigade of Fusiliers Marins, and the British Royal Naval, 7th, and 3rd Cavalry Divisions arrived on the coast at different dates early in October. The Royal Naval Division alone reached Antwerp, where they made a short but gallant stand. The French Marines and the two British Divisions covered the retreat of Belgian forces from Ghent, and the British Divisions were placed under Sir John French's command on the 9th October. The whole British Army was drawn south to Ypres and La Bassée.

In June 1917 the British Fourth Army (now reduced to the XV Corps) took over the sector from St. Georges to the sea from the XXXVI French Corps. The town of Nieuport, almost destroyed above ground, had been equipped by the French troops with a considerable system of tunnels.

The 1st and 32nd Divisions came to Nieuport in the middle of June, and the 66th (East Lancashire) Division at the end of June.

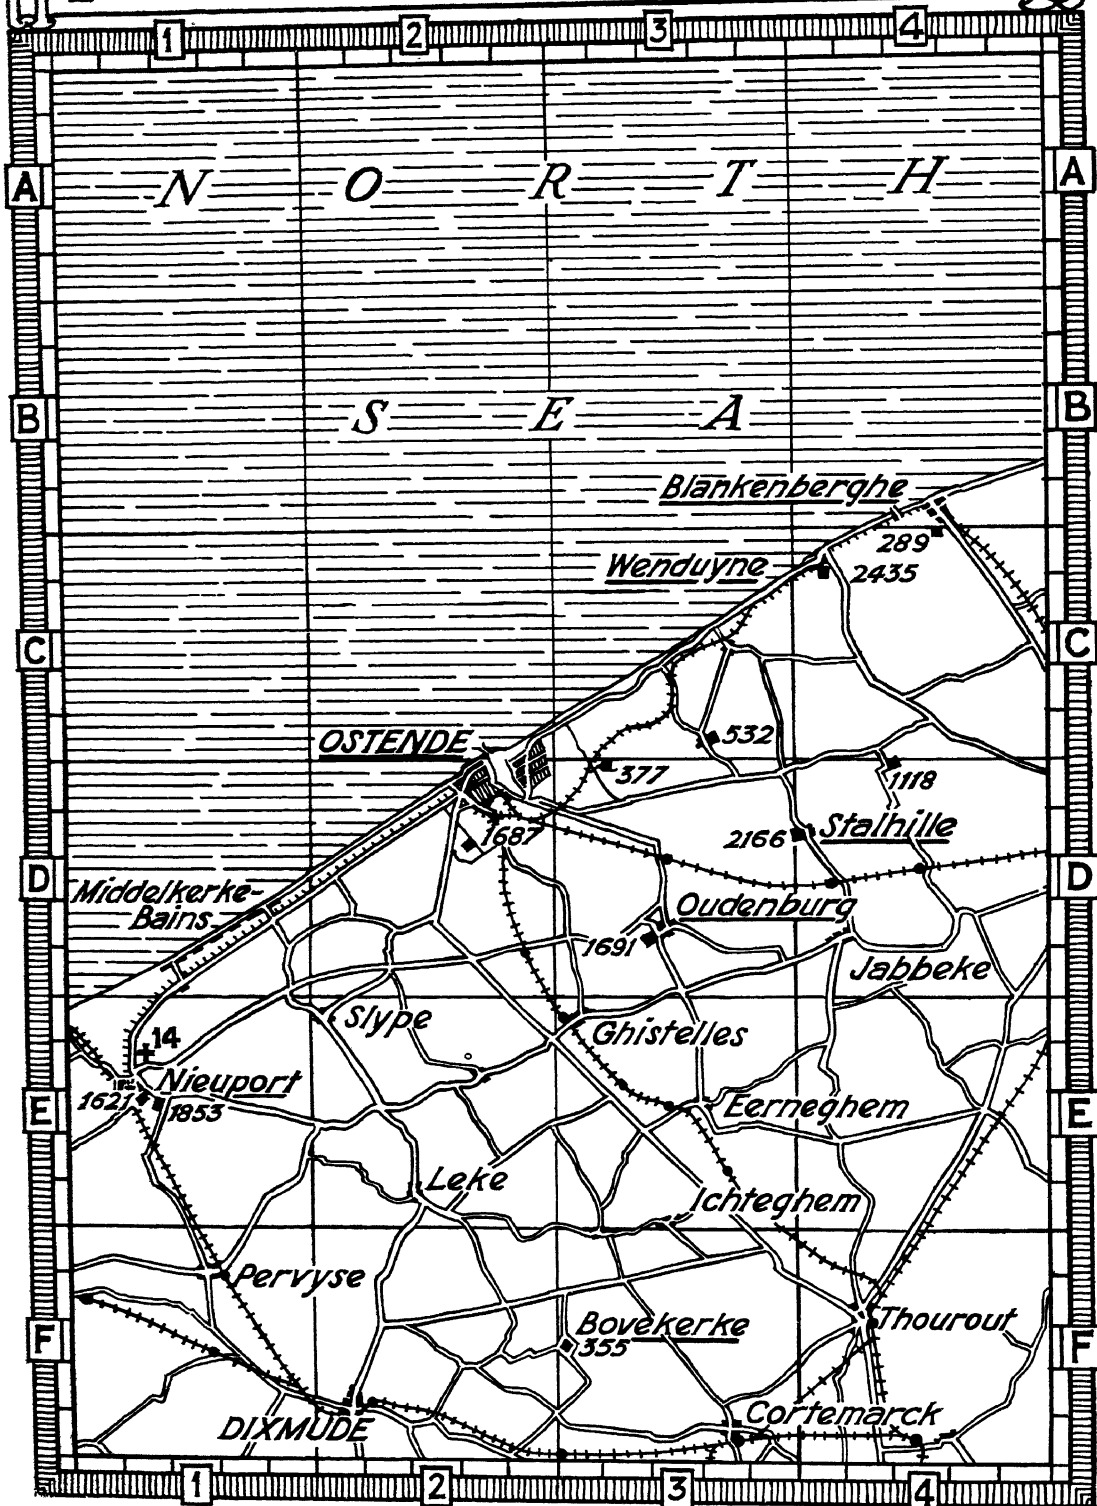

On the 10th July the enemy began an intense bombardment, which was followed in the evening by what is known as the 'German Attack on Nieuport'. The blow fell, in particular, on the 1st Division. Parties from two battalions of this Division (the 1st Northhamptons and the 2nd King's Royal Rifles) were holding the left of the line from the sea for a mile south-eastwards; they were cut off by the demolition of the bridges, and annihilated, except for 76 officers and men who swam the river. The 32nd Division, immediately north of Nieuport, lost its advanced trenches, but retained the bridgehead. Fighting continued until the 17th, but the new line was held. In that month of July the 1st Division sustained over 2,000 casualties, and the 32nd Division nearly 1,000.

In the middle of July the 49th (West Riding) Division joined the XV Corps, and the 33rd Division came at the end of July. No further offensive move was made on either side, though the monthly casualties of the Divisions were heavier than in other quiet sectors. The advance made from Ypres was too slow and too costly to justify a diversion from Nieuport. The Divisions continued to change. The 33rd Division left at the end of August, the 49th Division in the middle of September, and the 66th Division at the end of September. The 42nd (East Lancashire) Division came early in September and the 41st Division at the end of the month. The 1st and 32nd Divisions left in October, and the 9th (Scottish) Division came. In the middle of November the 41st Division left for Italy, and the 9th and 42nd, relieved by two French Divisions, returned to the original British Front. The occupation of Nieuport by the British forces was ended.

ZEEBRUGGE MEMORIAL

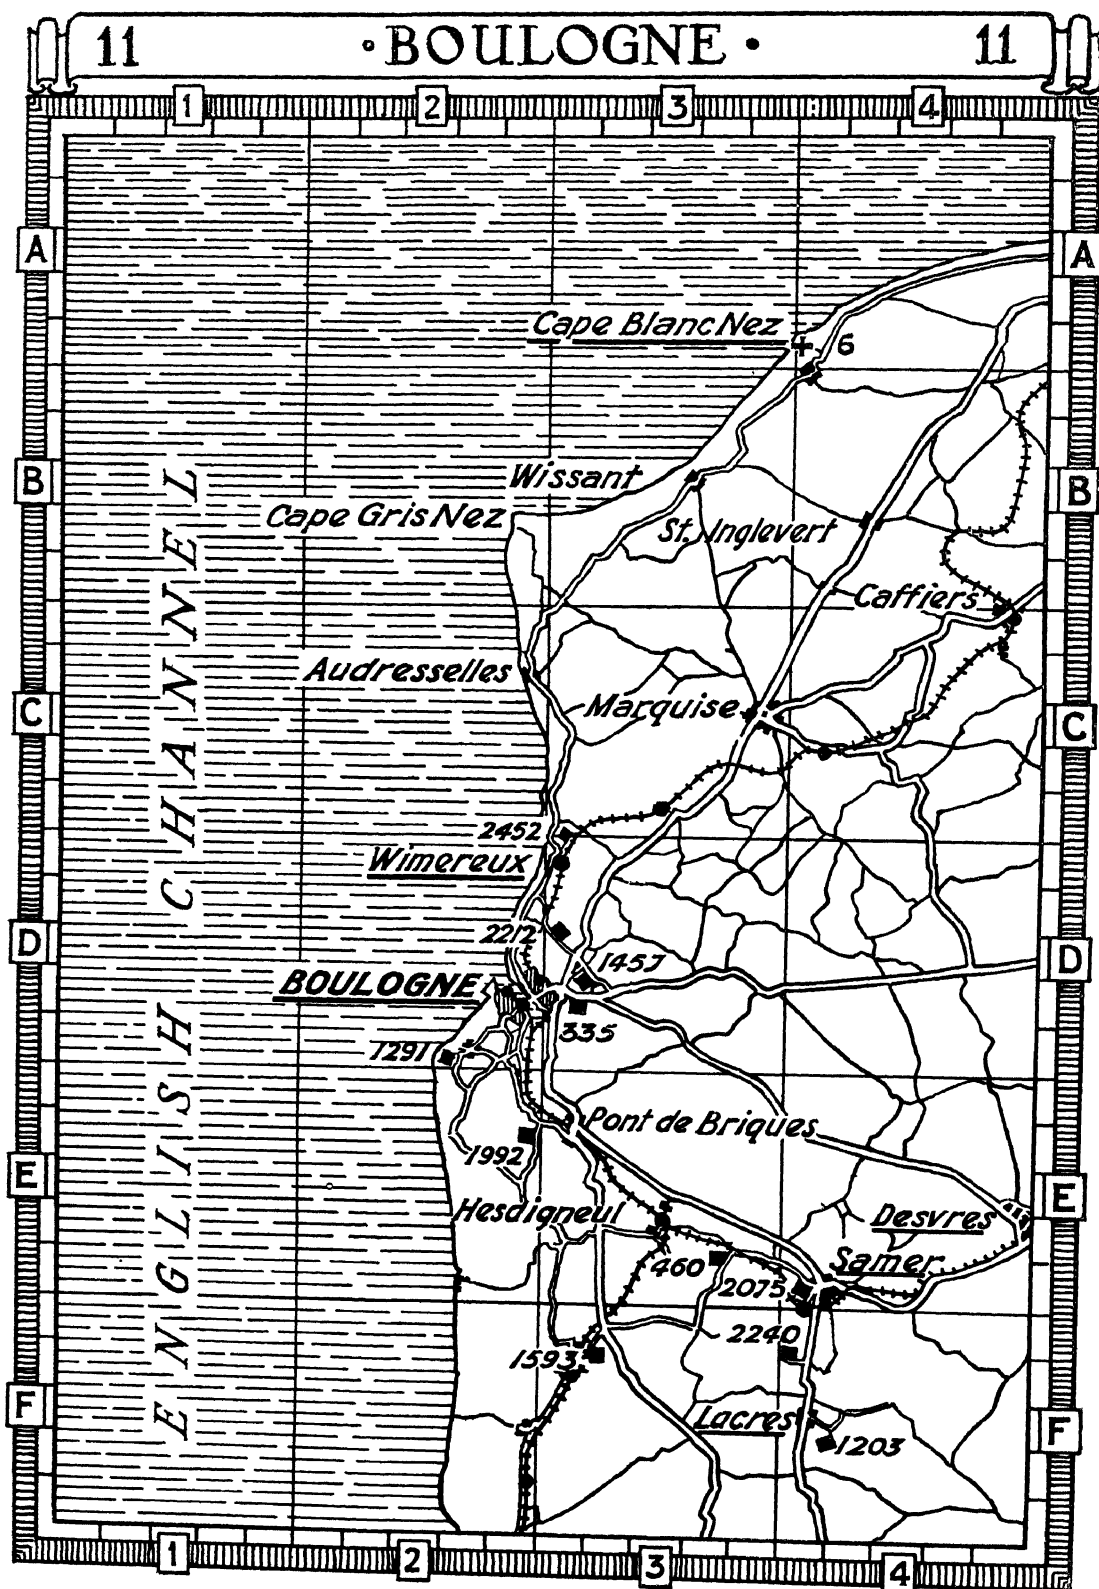

ZEEBRUGGE. The Bruges Canal at Zeebrugge was an important German Submarine Base until the night before St. Georges Day, April 23rd, 1918, when the enemy submarine menace was seriously checked by the blocking of that canal at Zeebrugge. This audacious affair was carried out to a successful conclusion at night through new and uncharted enemy mine-fields, and under the severe fire from the then heavily fortified Belgian coast. Sir Roger Keyes commanded a flotilla, comprising the block-ships Intrepid, Iphigenia, and Thetis, also the Brilliant and Sirius for Ostende Harbour, the cruiser Vindictive to attack the Mole, two ferry-boats, the Daffodil and Iris, the submarine 'C.3', supported by monitors and destroyers, with a flotilla of fast launches and motor-boats.

The Vindictive, assisted by the Daffodil and Iris, attacked and landed boarding-parties on the extremity of the Mole, and the submarine 'C.3' was blown up as arranged, destroying the viaduct and preventing reinforcements from reaching the Mole. Meanwhile the block-ships, under the glare of searchlights and point-blank range of enemy guns, entered the channel of the canal and there blew up, to remain until the end of the War, an insurmountable barrier to enemy submarines and destroyers.

CALAIS—ST. OMER

MAP SHEET No. 12

CALAIS is a considerable town and seaport of 72,000 inhabitants in the Department of the Pas-de-Calais.

In April 1915 it was found necessary to open a new Base which would be nearer to the British Front than Havre or Rouen and would relieve those Bases and Boulogne, and No. 6 Base Supply Depot was started at Calais. The 30th, 35th, and 38th General Hospitals, No. 9 British Red Cross Hospital, and No. 10 Canadian Stationary Hospital were the Medical Units stationed in the town; the hospital accommodation at its greatest strength was about 2,500 beds. The Base remained open until the last formations of the Army left France in March 1921.

436 CALAIS SOUTHERN CEMETERY (P. de C.). $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Calais-Ville Sta., at tram terminus on road to Gravelines. No. 6 Base Supply Depot was opened at Calais April 1915, and the 30th, 35th, and 38th Gen. Hosps., No. 9 B.R. C.S. and No. 10 Can. Sta. Hosp. were stationed in the town. Records 640 U.K., 35 Aust., 27 Can., 12 N.Z., 1 S.A., 1 Newfld, 1 B.W.I., and 1 Nat. Sea burials.

ST. OMER is a small town of great antiquity in the Department of the Pas-de-Calais, on the main road and railway between Calais and Lille.

St. Omer became on October 13th, 1914, and remained until the end of March 1916, the General Headquarters of the British Expeditionary Force. Lord Roberts died there in November 1914. It was a considerable hospital centre, more especially in 1918: the 4th, 10th, 7th Canadian, 9th Canadian and New Zealand Stationary Hospitals, the 7th, 58th (Scottish) and 59th (Northern) General Hospitals, and the 17th, 18th and 1st and 2nd Australian Casualty Clearing Stations were all, at some time during the War, quartered in St. Omer. It was raided by aeroplanes in November 1917 and May 1918, with serious loss of life.

1298 LES BARAQUES MILITARY CEMETERY, SANGATTE (P. de C.). 3 miles W. of Calais-Ville Sta. near coast road to Sangatte and N. of Les Baraques. Burials from Base Hospitals at Calais and used from Sept. 1917. Used from May to Oct. 1918 during period of German advance and retreat in Flanders. Few burials after Armistice. Records 52 U.K., and 1 Can. burials.

HAZEBROUCK

MAP SHEET No. 13

HAZEBROUCK is a town and commune in the Department of the Nord, about 35 miles south-east of Calais. It is an important railway junction on the lines from Calais to Lille and from Dunkerque to Paris.

From October 1914 to September 1917 Casualty Clearing Stations were posted at Hazebrouck. From September 1917 to September 1918 enemy shelling and bombing rendered the town unsafe for hospitals; but in September and October 1918 No. 9 British Red Cross Hospital was in the town.

1040 HAZEBROUCK COMMUNAL CEMETERY (Nord). 1 mile from sta. on S.W. outskirts of town. In Sept. and Oct. 1918, No. 9 British Red Cross Hosp. here, but before was unsafe for hospitals. Records 719 U.K., 59 Can., 50 Aust., 30 N.Z., 7 Ind., 1 B.W.I., 11 Unknown, and 2 Chin. burials.

YPRES—ARMENTIERES

MAP SHEET Nos. 14 AND 14A
YPRES

YPRES is an old town and a commune in the Province of West Flanders. It was, from October 1914 to the Autumn of 1918, the centre of a Salient held by the British (and for some months by the French) forces in Belgium. From April 1915 it was bombarded and destroyed more completely than any other town of its size on the Western Front; but even to the end certain buildings remained distinguishable. The ruins of the Cathedral and the Cloth Hall stood together in the middle of the city. The Infantry Barracks stood, in part, at the re-entrant angle of the south walls. The Prison, the Reservoir, and the Water Tower were together at the Western Gate; and the prison was 'a fine example of the resistance to shell-fire of thick walls if they are thick enough' (War Diary of the 1st Irish Guards, quoted by Mr. Rudyard Kipling).

It was surrounded by ramparts and a moat; and from these, on its eastern side, issued the road to Menin. The Menin Gate is rebuilt as a memorial to some of those who fell in the salient and have no known graves.

of the Brit. Emp. who fell in the Salient from Oct.
1914 to the night of Aug.
15-16th 1917, when
Battle of Langemarck began.

The remaining 'Missing' who fell in the Salient after the Battle of Langemarck are recorded on the Memorial in Tyne Cot Cem., Passchendaele, which is the largest British War Cem. in the world.

THE SALIENT. Between the 19th September and the 18th October 1914 the original Ypres Salient was formed. The British 7th Division and 3rd Cavalry Division, which had landed at Zeebrugge and Ostende on the 6th, 7th, and 8th October, helped to cover the Belgian retreat through West Flanders and arrived at Ypres on the 14th. The British II and III Corps from the Aisne reached on the 10th-11th October a line behind Hazebrouck and La Bassée. The German IV Cavalry Corps, which had entered Ypres, Bailleul, and Hazebrouck early in October, was forced back by our Cavalry Corps to the Ypres-Comines Canal, and the III Corps moved up behind them. The British I Corps entered Ypres on the 20th.

The Armies were now in position 'from the sea to Switzerland'. The Battle of Messines (1914), at the opposite end of the line in Belgium, had begun on the 12th October. There followed the Battle of Langemarck (21st-24th October); the Battle of Gheluvelt, astride the Menin Road (29th-31st October); and the Battle of Nonne-Boschen (11th November), in which the British Artillery and what was left of the British Infantry broke the culminating attack of the best German troops.

The closing month of 1914 witnessed the unsuccessful Anglo-French attack on Wytschaete, followed by Artillery fighting.

The Battles of Ypres, 1915, lasted from the 22nd April to the 25th May. They included the Battle of Gravenstafel Ridge (22nd-23rd April), in which gas was employed for the first time; the Battle of St. Julien (24th April-4th May); the Actions of Steenstraat (23rd April-5th May) in which the Belgians held their ground; the German Gas Attacks on Hill 60 (1st and 5th May); the Battle of Frezenberg Ridge (8th-13th May); and the Battle of Bellewaarde Ridge (24th-25th May). The Empire lost in this fighting 60,260 soldiers killed, wounded, and missing; and in the course of it we withdrew our line to north of Wieltje-Frezenberg to south and west of Hooge. The northern side of the Salient was re-drawn. Four actions were fought at Hooge (2nd June-9th August). The British attacks on Bellewaarde (16th June and 25th-26th September) and the German local attacks in July and August were not successful.

The year 1917 began with five months of trench warfare in the Salient, and these were followed by six months of successful but costly attack by the Allied forces. In the British official history this offensive is known as the Battle of Messines, 1917, and the Battles of Ypres, 1917; the Germans call the period from the 27th May to the 3rd December that of the Battle of Flanders, 1917. Its immediate object was 'the capture of the Messines-Wytschaete Ridge, and of the high ground which extends thence north-eastwards for some seven miles and then trends north through Broodseinde and Passchendaele'.

The first step was taken at the beginning of June, when a Corps was sent to take over from French troops a line, about four miles long, from St. Georges to the sea about Nieuport.

The next step was the Battle of Messines (7th-14th June), in which for the first time Australian and New Zealand troops took part in the fighting north of Ploegsteert Wood. It began with the explosion of nineteen mines, long prepared.

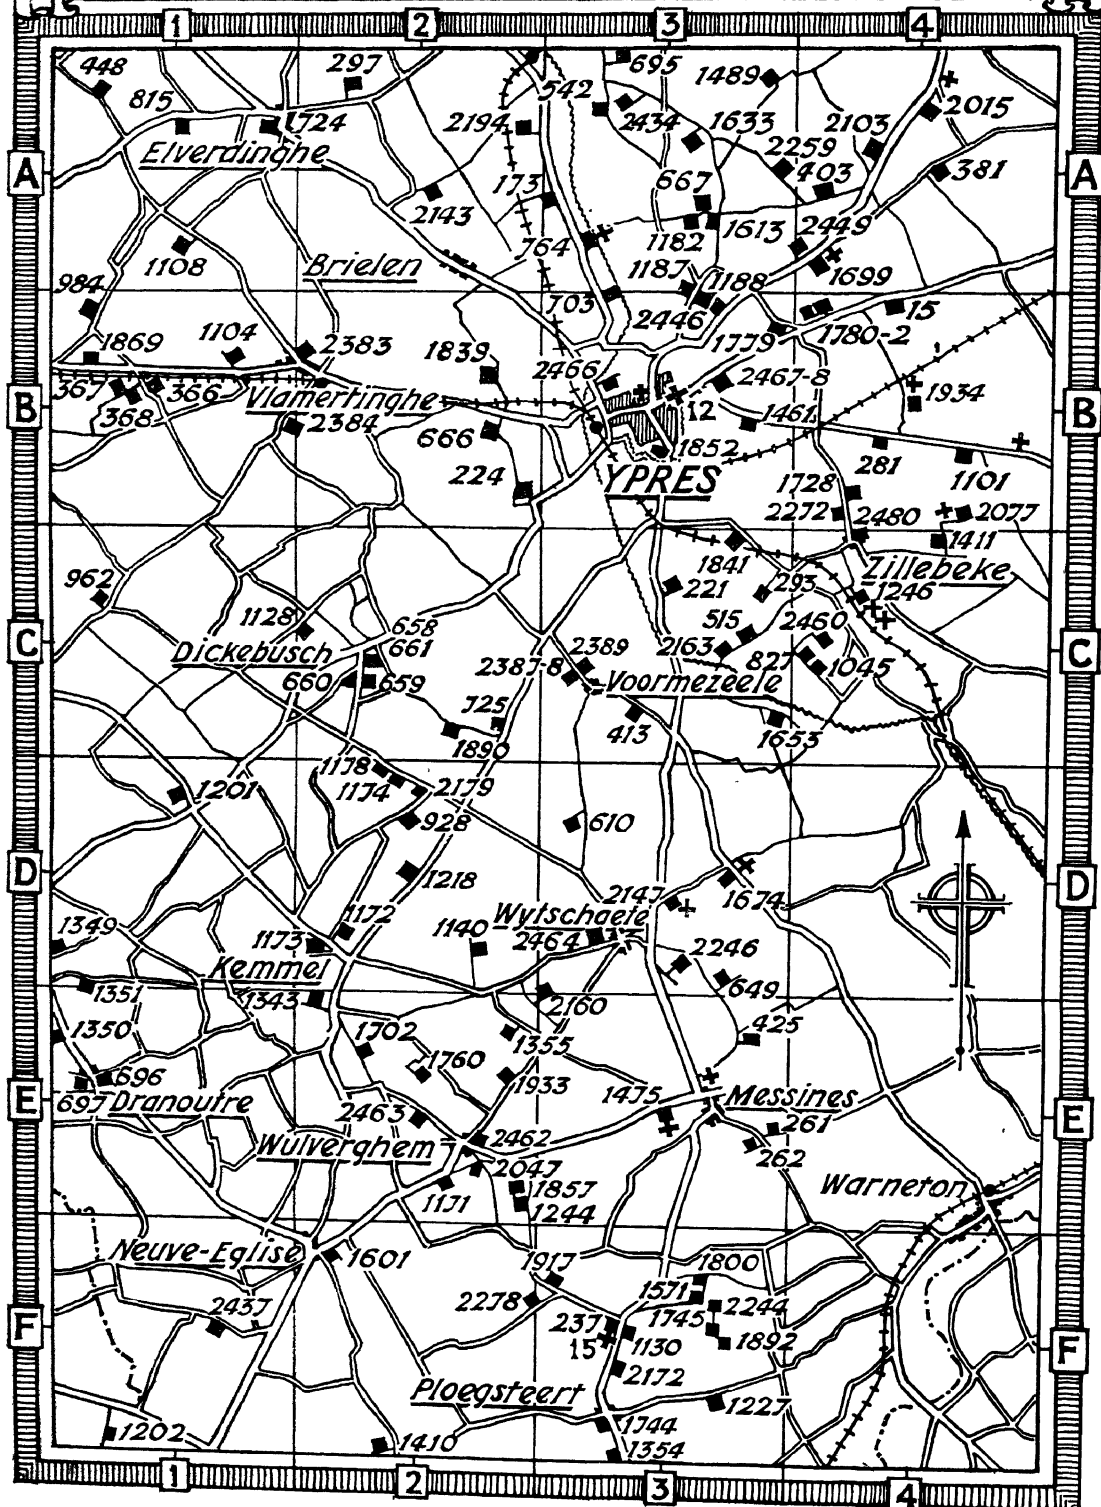

On the 31st July the Battles of Ypres, 1917, began, and on the 10th November, they ended in the capture of Passchendaele. They included the Battles of Pilckem Ridge, Langemarck, the Menin Road Ridge, Polygon Wood, Broodseinde, Poelcapelle, and Passchendaele.

The year 1918, however, the last of the War, witnessed the three great efforts of the German Army to snatch the final victory. In March they attacked the right and centre of the British line and drove back the Fifth Army, and part of the Third, nearly to Amiens. Their second attempt to break through was on the British left wing; the Battle of the Lys (known to the French as the Third Battle of Flanders and to the Germans as the Battle of Kemmel) began on the 9th April and lasted until the 30th.

The German effort, repeated in June far to the south, failed; and five months later their gains were lost for ever. In Flanders, after a few successful local advances, the British, French, and Belgian forces, under the King of the Belgians, attacked on the 28th September. 'By the end of the day the British divisions had passed far beyond the farthest limits of the 1917 battles.'

By the 6th October the British left had reached Ledeghem (due east of Ypres), and the right was on the Lys at Comines and Warneton. The Belgians and French were on the line from Ledeghem to Roulers. Eleven days later the Belgians were in Ostende, and the British warships in the harbour. The Ypres Salient existed only as a battle-field and a memory.

BETHUNE—ST. POL

MAP SHEET No. 23

BETHUNE is an ancient town in the Department of the Pas-de-Calais, on the railway line from Dunkerque to Paris.

During the greater part of the War Béthune was comparatively free from bombardment, and remained an important railway and hospital centre as well as Corps or Divisional Headquarters. The 33rd Casualty Clearing Station was in the town until December 1917. Early in 1918 Béthune began to suffer from constant shell-fire and in April 1918 (in the Battle of Béthune, one of the Battles of the Lys) German forces reached Locon, three miles to the north. The bombardment of the 21st May did great damage to the town, and it was not till October that the enemy pressure was relaxed.

ARRAS—DOUAI

MAP SHEET No. 24

ARRAS, the capital of the Pas-de-Calais Department, is a city and commune of 26,000 inhabitants, the seat of a bishopric, an important manufacturing and commercial town and a road and railway junction. It was a centre of population and government before Caesar invaded Gaul. It has played a considerable part in Burgundian and French history. It was fortified by Vauban, and the Citadel is part of his work.

The city was raided by German forces at the end of August 1914, and occupied by the Germans during the last fortnight in September. It was fiercely and unsuccessfully attacked in October, and it remained in Allied hands until the end of the War. It passed from French to British occupation in the Spring of 1916. It has given its name to the Battles of April and May 1917, in which the German front at Vimy and on the Scarpe was broken; to the Battle of the 28th March, 1918, in which the German attack on the Third Army was defeated; and to the Battles of August and September 1918, in which the Third Army helped to break the Hindenburg Line.

The city is built, to some extent, on its own underground quarries, and it covers a very large system of tunnels, which was used and developed by the British Army; their use, in the preparation for the Battle of April 1917, is mentioned in the official despatches.

The city has been 'adopted' by the City of Newcastle-upon-Tyne; and a memorial tablet to the 56th (London) Division was placed on the wall of the Convent of St. Augustine, in the Rue du Saumon near the railway station, in 1923.

CAMBRAI—VALENCIENNES

CAMBRAI is a considerable industrial town in the Department of the Nord on the right bank of the canalized River Scheldt (or Escaut). It has a railway station on the main lines from Calais to Bâle and from Paris to Douai. It is the seat of an archbishopric, and a city of great importance in the history of France and the Low Countries.

The city was occupied by German forces on the 26th August 1914, and it remained in German hands until the 9th October 1918. The Battle of Cambrai, 1917 (20th November to 3rd December), left the British line still five miles from the city on the south-west side, and the German Offensive of March 1918 drove it far to the west; but the Battle of Cambrai, 1918, the last of the Battles of the Hindenburg Line, delivered the city into British hands. It was very severely damaged, and the main square was still burning two days after the fight. In October and November four Casualty Clearing Stations were posted at Cambrai.

The city has been 'adopted' by the County Borough of Birkenhead.

THE BATTLE OF CAMBRAI, 1917. The attack was opened at 6.20 a.m. on 20th November by the advance of 360 Tanks and six Infantry Divisions, and at the same moment the Artillery (1,009 guns) put down smoke barrages in front of the advance. Another Infantry Division followed almost at once. The German front trenches and dugouts were carried and cleared up and the portion of the Hindenburg Line attacked was completely captured. Before midday the villages of Havrincourt and Ribécourt were taken and Welch Ridge, on the right front of our line, was stormed; but at a single point, the village of Flesquières, the advance was checked.

On the 21st Flesquières was captured by 8 a.m., and the attack on the Bearevoir-Masnières Line begun. By the evening, in spite of heavy German counter-attacks, Masnières had been cleared and Noyelles-sur-l'Escaut, Cantaing and Fontaine-Notre Dame had been taken, while on the extreme north British troops were near to Mœuvres.

The fighting from the 23rd to the 28th inclusive was concentrated almost entirely on Bourlon and Fontaine-Notre Dame. The latter village was gained and lost on the 23rd and 27th. A fresh Division was put in, and Bourlon village and the wood were the scene of desperate fighting during the whole of these days.

A German counter-attack began on the morning of the 30th November, and it was immediately successful on the southern half of the line, from the Canal de l'Escaut at Masnières to the neighbourhood of Vend'huile. It captured the Bonavis Ridge and the villages of Gonnellieu, Gouzeaucourt, and Villers-Guislain. It was checked in the afternoon, and Gouzeaucourt was recovered.

The fighting on the 1st December resulted in little gain or loss of ground. It was very severe, and villages were captured and recaptured. It was followed on the 2nd December by renewed and successful German attacks on Welch Ridge, and on the 3rd by further attacks and further slight withdrawal. Local fighting continued from the 4th to the 7th; during the same period, for tactical reasons, the positions north of the Flesquières Ridge (including the villages of Masnières, Marcoing, Noyelles Graincourt, Anneux, Cantaing, and Bourlon) were evacuated.

MONS

MAP SHEET No. 26

MONS, County Town of the Province of Hainaut, scene of severe fighting in the Retreat from Mons 1914 and the Return to Mons 1918.

The I and II Corps of the British Expeditionary Force under Sir John French were entrenched before Mons, Sunday 23rd August 1914. The German Army Corps of von Kluck and von Buelow massed to attack them about noon that day.

The attack, well supported by artillery fire, was hastily pressed, the enemy infantry advancing in dense masses from the shelter of the woods. Line after line were decimated, but reserves quickly replaced the fallen and continued the advance. They would have reached the British trenches, but our troops rose as a man and dispersed the remainder of the attacking force at the point of the bayonet. The Attacks were repeated throughout the day but met with no success.

The retirement of our Allies on the right, and knowledge of the immense German forces opposed to him, caused Sir John French to order a general retirement.

The Retreat commenced at dawn on Monday and continued through the Affair of Landrecies and Battle of Le Câteau, the Actions in the Forests of Compiègne and Villers Cotterêts until Thursday 3rd September 1914, when the British forces crossed the River Marne between Lagny and Meaux. There, after ten days of fighting and retreat, thirty miles a day, practically without food or sleep, haggard, begrimed, bearded, and footsore, the British forces, undefeated and undaunted, stayed to rest and reorganize prior to the Battle of the Marne.

The Canadians of General Horne's First Army returned to Mons. Advancing from south and west they had enveloped the town by Sunday night 10th November 1918 against a determined and tenacious machine-gun defence. Fighting continued throughout the night, and at dawn of Armistice morning the 3rd Canadian Division entered Mons.

1508 MONS COMMUNAL CEMETERY (HAINAUT). 2 miles E. of sta. on by-road to Nimy, N. of road to Havré. Burials from Battle of Mons 1914, and used by Germans as Prisoners of War Cem. DIEPPE—ROUEN

MAP SHEET No. 32

DIEPPE is an important town and seaport in the Department of the Seine Inférieure, at the mouth of the River Arques.

Dieppe was used as a minor British Base (particularly for supplies of small arms ammunition, forage, and flour) from December 1914 onwards; and from January 1915 to May 1919 'A' Section of No. 5 Stationary Hospital was quartered in the town.

ROUEN is an old cathedral town on the River Seine, in the Department of the Seine-Inférieure. It is the chief town of the Department, and important both as an industrial centre and as a port. During the War, British camps and hospitals were placed on the southern outskirts of the city; a Base Supply Depot and the 3rd Echelon of General Headquarters were established at Rouen; and the railway sidings at Sotteville were largely increased to deal with the British supply and troop trains which passed through the Rouen stations or were dispatched from them.

The hospitals at Rouen remained there in almost all cases for practically the whole of the War. They included eight General, five Stationary, one British Red Cross and one Native Labour Hospitals, and No. 2 Convalescent Depot.

ABBEVILLE, an old and important town near the mouth of the Somme, lies on the main road and the main railway line between Boulogne and Paris. It was during the greater part of the War, under various titles, the Headquarters of the British Lines of Communication, and three Hospitals were stationed there from 1915 to 1919.

AMIENS

MAP SHEET No. 33

AMIENS is an ancient cathedral town on the left bank of the Somme, containing nearly 100,000 inhabitants. It is the capital of the Department of the Somme, the Headquarters of the II French Army Corps, a railway junction and an important manufacturing town. During part of August 1914 it was the British Advanced Base. It was captured by the Germans on the 31st of that month, and retaken by the French on the following 13th September. The German offensive, which began in March 1918, had Amiens for at least one of its objectives; but the 'Battle of Amiens' (8th to 11th August 1918) is the British name for the action by which the counter-offensive, the Advance to Victory, was begun.

The 7th General Hospital was at Amiens in August 1914; the 56th (South Midland) Casualty Clearing Station from April to July 1916; the New Zealand Stationary Hospital from July 1916 to May 1917; the 42nd Stationary Hospital from October 1917 to March 1919; and the 41st Stationary Hospital in March 1918, and again in December 1918 and January 1919.

ALBERT

MAP SHEET No. 34A

ALBERT is a town of 7,000 inhabitants on the River Ancre, in the Department of the Somme, with a railway station on the main line from Paris and Amiens to Arras and Lille. It was held by French forces against the German Advance on the Somme in September 1914. It passed into British hands in the summer of 1915; and the first fighting in July 1916 is known as the 'Battle of Albert, 1916'. It was captured by the Germans on the 26th April 1918, and before its recapture by the 8th East Surreys on the following 22nd August (in the Battle of Albert, 1918) it had been completely destroyed by artillery fire.

The town has been 'adopted' by the City of Birmingham.

BAPAUME—PÉRONNE

MAP SHEET No. 35

BAPAUME is a commune and small town in the Department of the Pas-de-Calais, connected by a light railway with Achiet-le-Grand on the main line from Paris and Amiens to Arras and Douai. It was the scene of a battle on the 3rd January 1871. It was occupied by German forces on the 26th September 1914, and by the British on the 17th March 1917; it was retaken by Germans on the 24th March 1918, and by the New Zealand Division on the following 29th August. It has given its name to the battles of the 24th-25th March 1918 and the 31st August to 3rd September 1918. It was severely damaged by both sides during the War, and it has been 'adopted' by the City of Sheffield.

PÉRONNE is a commune and small town in the Department of the Somme, in the valley of the River Somme. It has a railway station on the main line from Paris to Cambrai and Douai, with light railway connexions.

Péronne has stood many sieges in French and Burgundian history. It was fortified by Vauban. It was captured by the Germans on the 9th January 1871, after a twelve days' siege and a severe bombardment. It fell into German hands again on the 24th September 1914. On the 18th March 1917 the 40th and 48th Divisions entered the town, which had been set on fire by the enemy; and on the 23rd March 1918 the Germans recaptured it. On the 30th August to 1st September 1918 the 2nd Australian Division took Mont-St. Quentin (a feat commemorated by the Battle Memorial erected beside the village street), and on the latter day they entered Péronne.

The town has been 'adopted' by the County Borough of Blackburn.

SOISSONS

MAP SHEET No. 42

SOISSONS stands on the left bank of the Aisne, between wooded hills rising north and south from the wide valley.

The original British Expeditionary Force crossed the Aisne in August 1914 a few miles west of Soissons, and re-crossed it in September a few miles east.

At the end of April 1918 five Divisions, forming the IX Corps, were transferred to the French Sixth Army to rest and refit. They were the 8th, 19th (Western), 21st, 25th, and 50th (Northumbrian) Divisions. The 19th, 21st, 25th, and 50th had within the last two months helped to withstand the two great German offensives on the Somme on the Lys, while the 8th had been heavily engaged in the fighting on the Somme. All of them had very recently received young and partly trained drafts from England.

During the first fortnight in May the 21st, 8th, and 50th Divisions were put into the line on a front of fifteen miles running east and west between Reims and Soissons, with their left flank close to the eastern end of the Chemin des Dames. On these Divisions, as well as on the French troops for twenty miles on their left, there fell, in the early morning of the 27th May, the German attack called the 'Offensive in Champagne'.

The German infantry attack was preceded by a bombardment of intense severity lasting three and a half hours, and it was immediately and overwhelmingly successful. But the British Divisions were not driven back without adding to the great reputation which each of them had already acquired, and the self-sacrifice of the 2nd Devons and the 5th Battery Royal Field Artillery was the subject of special Orders of the Day issued later by the French Fifth Army Commander.

On the 6th June a fierce German attack on the Montagne de Bligny, immediately north-east of the river, was repulsed by the 1st/4th King's Shropshire Light Infantry, to whom as a unit the French Croix de Guerre was afterwards awarded.

The IX Corps was withdrawn from the French Front in the first days of July 1918. It had lost by death about 15,000 officers and men, but it had gained the warm appreciation of its French comrades and added another to the list of heroic defensive battles fought by British troops.

On the 13th July, for reasons connected with the disposition of the German forces near Reims, General Headquarters agreed to send four Divisions—the 15th (Scottish), 34th, 51st (Highland), and 62nd (West Riding)—constituting the XXII Corps, to the French Front. The fighting from the 20th July to the 2nd August, so far as the British forces are concerned, is known as the 'Counter-Attack in Champagne', and it is divided into the two Battles of the Marne 1918.

The Battle of Tardenois lasted from 20th to the 31st July. The 51st and 62nd Divisions attacked in the neighbourhood where the 19th Division had fought on June 6th; they took Marfaux on the 23rd July and the Montagne de Bligny on the 28th, capturing 1,200 prisoners and advancing four miles; and it should be added that the New Zealand Cyclist Battalion (twelve of whose dead are named on a memorial in Marfaux British Cemetery) played a distinguished part in the capture of Marfaux.

On the 23rd July the 15th and 34th Divisions, as part of the French Tenth Army, attacked the west side of the German Salient about Berzy-le-Sac and Parcy-Tigny. This engagement, known as the 'Battle of the Soissonnais and of the Ourcq', lasted until the 2nd August, and the 15th Division in particular was prominent in the capture of Buzancy on the 28th July.

SOISSONS MEMORIAL (AISNE). 1 mile N. of station between the Cathedral and Pont des Anglais, E. of R. Aisne.
